Completion date:	15/01/2023
License/usage protections:	Sharing only / CC BY-NC-ND
Name of the evaluator:	Edoardo Mascheroni
Score legend:	High / 3 points	Good / 2 points	Low / 1 point	Poor / 0 points
Relevance
How important is the content of the OER to our learning objective?
Score:	3
Notes:	The video demonstrates very concretely how to carry out the "Conversation Reconstruction" activity. The practicality of the material makes it very suitable for teaching how to perform this language activity.
Accuracy
How correct is the content of the OER? Is the information up to date? Is the form (spelling, grammar) correct?
Score:	3
Notes:	The content is still very up to date and the language activity is shown correctly.
Quality
Consider the technical quality of the OER in terms of graphic layout, audio/video quality, clarity of exposition.
Score:			1
Notes:	The video / audio quality is quite poor, there are background noises that disturb listening and the video is fixed and with low resolution. However, the teacher's oral exposition is clear and easily understandable.
Accessibility
Is the OER free? Is it easy to access from the web? Is it possible to download it? Is it possible to edit it? Is it possible to convert it to another format?
Score:		2
Notes:	The material is accessible, free, easy to find and it can be linked, but is not possible to download it, edit it or change its format.

Engagement

How attractive is the OER to a learner? It's interesting? Does it catch the attention or is it boring?

Score:

1

Notes:

The video is interesting for the proposed content, the practical demonstration of the activity, but the duration (20 minutes) and the static nature of the observation point make it difficult for learners to use.

Total score: 10 (maximum score is 15)

Final and general comment:

This video is one of the very few available to have a practical demonstration of the linguistic activity named "Conversation reconstruction", therefore it is a very valuable material. Given the absence of better alternatives, I recommend playing this video, even if the poor audio/video quality represents an evident difficulty in fueling the learner's engagement.
